WORD FOR WORD

The Friends of Word For Word presents "A Night With Barbara Kingsolver," a benefit for its Fourth Anniversary Festival, taking place in August. Word For Word is the unique professional theater company that brings literature to life, creating original dramatic work from classic and contemporary fiction.

For this one-night-only benefit, the company restages their production of Kingsolver's short story Rose-Johnny, a compelling portrait of a young girl coming of age against a background of racism and homophobia in a small Southern town. She deceives her family and defies the town's morality through her attraction to the mysterious, androgynous woman who runs the local feed store.

Last summer's staging of Rose-Johnny at Magic Theatre was described as "subtle, compelling and delicately textured...beautifully staged, engaging and moving theater." It sold out, even with added performances.

For this special program, Abby Award-nominated author Kingsolver makes a rare public appearance, giving a short talk and joining with the audience in a question and answer dialogue after the performance.

Rose-Johnny, from Homeland, Kingsolver's collection of short stories, is directed by Sandra Langsner-Crews. Featured are Word For Word charter members Delia MacDougall, Jeri Lynn Cohen, Susan Harloe, Wendy Radford, Nancy Shelby, and JoAnne Winter, as well as Margo Hall, Joel Mullenix, and Michael Washington Brown.

Barbara Kingsolver was trained as a biologist before becoming a writer. Her books include collections of poetry, essays, short stories, and the award-winning novels Animal Dreams, The Bean Trees, and Pigs in Heaven. Her work has appeared in The Nation, The Progressive, Natural History, Parenting, Smithsonian, Utne Reader, American Voice, Bloomsbury Review, and many other periodicals.

All of Kingsolver's writing addresses issues of social and environmental responsibility. She grew up in Kentucky, working at a broad range of professions including typesetter, archaeologist, and medical lab technician before becoming a fulltime writer.

Rose-Johnny is presented in the Cowell Theater June 9, Monday at 8pm. Tickets are $25. For information, call 543-9505.

HOMENAJE

In "Homenaje '97," Sara de Luis has created a beautiful program of classical Spanish dance and flamenco that celebrates the dance styles Spain has given to the world. The production, with an exciting cast of dancers and musicians from Spain, Mexico, and the United States, pays homage (homenaje) to the great creators of those forms, the star dancers of Spanish companies that toured the world between 1920 and 1960. Vintage photos adorn the production, projected onto huge screens that enter and exit as each new scene unfolds.

In the 1930s, '40s and '50s, people of the Americas were fascinated with Spanish dance, and saw many forms of it. Spanish companies made movies in Hollywood, Buenos Aires, and Mexico City, and performed in the great nightclubs of the period as well as in concert halls and opera houses.

Most urban Americans knew their names: La Argentinita, Rosario and Antonio, José Greco, Carmen Amaya, Pilar Lopez, Antonio de Triana. The Ximenez-Vargas Ballet Español performed at Lincoln Center in 1962 with the New York Philharmonic Orchestra, and later that year appeared on the Ed Sullivan Show. In the company was a young dancer named Sara de Luis.

Since those years, many Americans have lost touch with Spanish dance artists. People now think primarily of flamenco. Although the song, rhythm and dance of Spain's gypsy population are among the sources of Spanish dance forms, they constitute only one of many influences.

Sara de Luis and co-producer Manolo de la Hoz, also a former member of the Ximenez-Vargas company, present a concert to rekindle interest in the rich variety of Spanish dance.

Act 1 of "Homenaje '97" presents dances in the styles of stars from the golden age of Spanish dance—1920 to 1960—including accurate recreations of choreography and costumes. The finale reconstructs the style of the cafés cantantes, where flamenco first became a theatrical art. Act 2 presents exciting stylists who have made their mark in flamenco moderno.

Among the most influential early artists are Antonia Merce, "La Argentina," who originated the Spanish neoclassical style; Rosario and Antonio; Manolo Vargas; Pilar Lopez; and Encarnacion Lopez, "La Argentinita." The personal dance styles and theatrical choreography influenced the artists who performed in the '60s, '70s and '80s, including those appearing in "Homenaje." Nine dances are presented in Act 1, in the styles created by these stars.

All of these artists loved flamenco, and so do today's performers. Based on complex rhythmic patterns and soulful songs with origins traced to exotic cultures as far away as India, flamenco offers the performer the greatest opportunity for passion and drama, as well as humor and earthiness.

But flamenco does not stand still. Today, it is experiencing an evolution almost radical enough to be a revolution, as young guitarists fuse its complex traditional rhythms with new influences from jazz and classical music. It is also evolving as a theatrical form, with full-length flamenco story ballets being created and performed on both sides of the Atlantic.

In the second half of the program, each dancer performs his favorite rhythm. This is flamenco as it should be experienced, with a gifted singer, two exciting guitarists, and seasoned dancers doing what they love best.

"Homenaje '97" is presented in the Cowell Theater June 4 through 13. For details, see June 4. For information, call 392-4400.

ON STAGE AROUND THE CENTER

Micetro
Coached by two directors, sixteen improvisers compete until only one player remains. This is the "Micetro," who wins a block of cheese. Bayfront Theater; see June 1.

Playwrights' Center of San Francisco
hosts meetings for new and experienced playwrights. Staged Readings are members performing their original scripts, followed by audience critique. At Scene Nights, writers read scenes from works in progress in an informal circle; a discussion follows the readings. Nonmembers are welcome. Scene Night June 6; Staged Readings June 13-27. Blue Bear Performance Hall; see June 6.

Haight Street Puppet Theater
Puppet shows for all ages: stories by Maurice Sendak and Daniel Pinkwater, plus wonderful music for kids. Proceeds benefit the SF Children's Art Center. Landmark Building C; see June 7.

Opera For Kids: When The Fat Lady Sings
A whirlwind look at opera, with live actors, professional singing, and European puppets. Learn about wonderful operas; laugh at the comedic aspects of opera; get a chance to participate in the show. Young Performers Theatre; see June 14.

BATS Summer Scrimmage
Bay Area Theatresports presents teams of the Bay Area's best improvisers competing in round robin tournament play. Bayfront Theater; see June 20.

Arab Film Festival of SF
The first festival of its kind, showcasing outstanding films depicting the beauty, humor, pathos, and rich variety of the Arab world. Included are full-length award-winning features from Algeria, Tunisia, Palestine, Syria, and Egypt that have won their creators international recognition. Also shown are the captivating short Umm Kulthum and compelling documentaries that illuminate the many faces of the vast, complex Arab world.

The Festival is sponsored by the Arab Women's Solidarity Association, a nonprofit, nongovernmental organization dedicated to building bridges between Arab and non-Arab communities. The event is organized and staffed by a multiethnic group of volunteers who share both a love of film and a commitment to improving cultural awareness and tolerance in the Bay Area.

The Festival's charter is to present Arab culture, history, politics, and the unique Arab ethos with integrity, clarity, and spirit. All films are shown with English subtitles. Cowell Theater; see June 21.

The Joy Of Going Somewhere Definite
The West Coast premiere of Quncy Long's play. In a swirling world of song and traditional radio sound effects produced onstage, this inventive writer presents three unemployed loggers on a misguided midnight mission to help a drunken stranger win back his wife. The treachery of booze and a winter storm contribute to the mayhem. Magic Theatre; see June 24.

Philosophical Fragments
A unique program of dance theater based on the philosophy texts of Heidegger, Nietzsche, and Plato. Philip Jones "leads a new breed of choreographers into the 21st century, extending the boundaries of the art form into greater dimensions of creativity, invention, and challenge." Cowell Theater; see June 26.

RHYTHM AND MOVEMENT

Crosspulse, Inc. presents an informal showing and discussion of Perayaan/The Celebration, a polycultural performance piece set to premiere in the Bay Area in the fall of 1998. Glimpse the continuing growth of this project and take the opportunity to see the excitement and challenges of creating intercultural performances.

Co-directed by Bay Area percussionist/rhythm dancer Keith Terry and Indonesian choreographer I Wayan Dibia, this work in progress is the long-awaited sequel to 1990's Body Tjak. Dibia and Terry also collaborated on that piece; Perayaan/The Celebration is another product of the continuing meeting of minds and cultures that these two artists seek. Keith Terry and Crosspulse have a long history of cross-cultural performances.

Funded in part by Meet The Composer, The Rockefeller Foundation, the Fort Mason Foundation, and The Hewlett Foundation, Perayaan/The Celebration takes place in the Cowell Theater June 19, Sunday at 2pm. Tickets are $5, available at the door. For information, call (510) 559-9797.

RECLAIMING OUR TREASURES

A brand-new, three-part exhibit is currently underway at the San Francisco African American Historical & Cultural Society museum. "Reclaiming Our Treasures: The Trilogy" continues the Society's tradition of exploring the history of the African Diaspora in America and its search for the African experience.

Curator Michael Copeland Sydnor draws the show's title from a work by artist Sargent Claude Johnson. This sculpture, known as the "log," currently lies neglected at the corner of Golden Gate Avenue and Webster Street. "I've lived and walked by this 'log' on the street many times," Sydnor reflects, "never knowing, nor acknowledging its importance...it symbolized my ignorance—of Africa, so vividly captured in the somber face of the woman in the log who never stands up but just lays on her back." This forgotten cultural treasure illustrates the need to reclaim the history and power of African American culture.

Phase One: Am My Brother's Keeper
Phase One of the Trilogy is a photographic journal of West Africa. Dutch-born American Lucas Kiers—the first white artist to be exhibited in the Society's 42-year history—captures in black and white photographs the beauty and joy he encountered on a 10,000-mile journey from 1969 to 1971. Together with his brother Eric, Kiers traveled African style: on top of cargo trucks, up the Niger River in a piroque, and down through the pineapple plantations of the Ivory Coast by train. Also on display are artifacts and textiles Eric collected on these travels. The show is dedicated to Eric, who died of AIDS in 1994. "Am My Brother's Keeper" opened April 27 and runs through June 15. A tribute to Eric Kiers is held June 12, Thursday from 6 to 9pm.

Phase Two: Many Handfuls
Nigerian artist Sunday Oni presents the West Coast premiere of his Yoruba textiles. Using the traditional techniques of his Orisa Yoruba culture, Oni has created a vast, colorful array of textile and fashion designs. Weaving and dyeing ancient cultural images into modern fashions, he brings a fresh view to the traditional methods taught him by Yemisi Olaniyi, his mentor of ten years. "Many Handfuls" opens June 22 and runs through August 10. A reception for the artist is held June 22, Sunday from 3 to 6pm.

Phase Three: L'Afrique Corazón
Mexican artist Juan Duclos discovered "the heart of Africa" while living on the island of Zanzibar. Drawing on Africa's vibrant forms of artistic expression, his distinct, colorful oil paintings represent the lively spirit of Africa and aim to "give visible form to the light and soul of this continent and people." "L'Afrique Corazón" opens August 23 and runs through October 26. A reception for the artist is held on August 23, Sunday from 5 to 8pm.

The San Francisco African American Historical & Cultural Society is located in Landmark Building C. The gallery is open Wednesday through Sunday, noon to 5pm. Admission is $2, $1 for seniors and students. Children under 8 years of age get in free. For more information, call 441-0640

CALIFORNIA AIDS RIDE 4

More than 2000 adventurers begin a seven-day cycling journey from Fort Mason Center to raise several million dollars for AIDS care agencies. Participants travel from San Francisco to Los Angeles to support the work of California community service organizations.

For those who can't make the trip, volunteers are needed to help with events and activities before and after the beginning of the Ride. A support crew of 400 joins in the opening ceremonies, taking place at the Herbst and Festival Pavilions.

The organizers emphasize that this is a ride, not a race, open to everyone, not just cycling experts. Most of the participants are ordinary people who have chosen to take on an extraordinary challenge. The effort begins with the discipline of getting into great physical condition, to develop the stamina needed to complete the Ride, and to enjoy it.

Registered participants receive a complete training guide, and information about volunteer-led training rides held on weekends before the event. Training together helps everyone excel, not just survive.

AIDS Ride 4 begins on Sunday, June 1, starting at 7am. For information, call 908-0400.

THE ART OF BONSAI

The Bonsai Society of San Francisco, one of the oldest bonsai clubs in California, presents its 13th annual show and sale in the Conference Center. Held for the first time at Fort Mason, the event features a large display of bonsai styled by members of the Society.

The show also includes demonstrations in the art of bonsai, and docent-led tours of the displays throughout both days. A sale of bonsai trees, pots, and related items is offered, along with a clinic where experts answer questions on the care and cultivation of any type of tree.

The event is presented in Landmark Building A, June 21 and 22, Saturday and Sunday from 10am to 5pm. Demonstrations take place at 2pm each day. Admission is $2 for adults, $1 for seniors, free for students and children under 12. For information, call 273-5509.

ART FOR SALE

The San Francisco Museum Of Modern Art Rental Gallery presents a sale of fine art to raise funds for the Gallery's Exhibition Program. The five-day event is bigger and better than last year's sale, with expanded hours and a variety of media, all by artists who have exhibited at the Gallery and all at half the normal retail price. The Gallery restocks the supply daily.

This is the Rental Gallery's Fourth Annual Artists' Warehouse Sale. The Gallery aims to provide Bay Area and Northern California artists—both emerging and established—exposure to the commercial art world. Started nineteen years ago, the Gallery is unusual in that it offers the option to rent pieces instead of buying them, giving patrons the chance to test drive a work before committing. Another benefit is the increased exposure an artist may receive by having work displayed in different locations. Currently, the Gallery accommodates more than 1,600 patrons and nearly that many artists.

The Artists' Warehouse Sale takes place June 4 through 8, Wednesday from 5 to 9pm, Thursday and Friday from noon to 8pm, and Saturday and Sunday from noon to 4pm. The San Francisco Museum Of Modern Art Rental Gallery is located in Landmark Building A; for information, call 441-4777.

DISCOVER THE FARALLONES

The Farallon Islands

In spring and summer, nearly a quarter million seabirds nest on stark granite cliffs that rise sharply from the Pacific, just 27 miles from the Golden Gate. Nutrient-rich upwellings from the nearby edge of the Continental Shelf attract marine life of all kinds, from tiny plankton to endangered humpback and blue whales—the largest animals ever to live—to the Farallon Islands.

From the Oceanic Society's Coast Guard-certificated vessel, marine mammals are observed in the surf or hauled out on the Island: California sea lions, Northern elephant seals, Steller's sea lions, harbor seals, and perhaps fur seals. The Farallon Islands National Wildlife Refuge is the largest seabird rookery in the eastern Pacific south of Alaska, with tufted puffins, pigeon guillemots, rhinoceros auklets, murres, oystercatchers and cormorants. Above, soaring or diving, are albatross, jaegers and shearwaters. Many trips encounter humpback or blue whales. While underway, the boat may acquire an escort of bow-riding Dall's porpoise; passengers may see Pacific white-sided or Risso's dolphins, or glimpse elusive harbor porpoise.

Tufted Puffin

Since 1972, Oceanic Society expert naturalists, selected for their leadership abilities and enthusiasm, have conducted natural history trips: whale watches, Farallones cruises, and international ecotours around the world. Naturalists help spot whales and provide information about the natural and human history of the Islands and the surrounding marine environment.

Trips depart from Fort Mason Center from June through November, Saturdays and Sundays and some Fridays and Mondays. The New Superfish, a 63-foot motor vessel with open observation decks and limited indoor seating in an enclosed salon, travels under the Golden Gate Bridge and west to the Farallon Islands. The excursion lasts approximately eight hours.

Oceanic Society Farallon cruises are presented in conjunction with the Gulf of the Farallones National Marine Sanctuary and the Pt. Reyes Bird Observatory. The California State Senate has honored OSE for its educational whale and wildlife programs.

Trips go rain or shine. Minimum age is 10; an adult must accompany youths under 15. Reservations are required. For information, call 474-3385. For recorded marine life sightings updates, call OSE's Whale Hotline, 474-0488.

SF CRAFT & FOLK ART MUSEUM

Costume Sha-Sha Higby

Peruvian Retablos: The Social And Political Art Of Nicario Jimenez
Retablos are brightly painted wooden dioramas with figures sculpted from a mixture of plaster and potatoes. First used as portable altars carried by Spanish soldiers during the reconquista of the Iberian peninsula, retablos spread with those soldiers throughout the New World colonies. In Peru, they eventually fused Old and New World cultures to depict Spanish religious beliefs as well as Peruvian indigenous myth.

Peruvian artist Nicario Jimenez Quispe learned the art of making retablos from his father and grandfather, who sold them as souvenirs during Holy Week. Their carvings generally sought traditional deities' protection for crops and flocks. Jimenez works contemporary images into his retablos and, in so doing, has also made them a powerful vehicle for social and political commentary. His works may contrast folk medicine and modern science, show the sufferings of the poor—victims of both local guerrillas and the military—or depict the power struggles between the Catholic church and the government of President Alberto Fujimori.

Because of the backlash his daring and "subversive" works created, he eventually moved to Lima, where he found a responsive audience. Over the years, he has participated in exhibits and festivals in Ecuador, Venezuela, Bolivia, Canada, and Korea. In the United States, he created a retablo especially for the Smithsonian Institution. He has also depicted North American cultural and political life in retablos of Harlem street life, Venice Beach, and the California/Mexico border crossing.

Several special events allow visitors to meet with and hear Nicario Jimenez. Sunday, June 8 at 1pm, the Museum, in conjunction with The Mexican Museum, presents "Family Sunday: Peruvian Retablo Making." For information, call 202-9721, Tuesday and Thursday, June 10 and 12 at 1pm, Jimenez demonstrates the making of retablos in the Museum gallery. And on June 11, Wednesday at 7:30pm, Jimenez lectures on his work and the impact of producing political art in Peru. For information, call 775-0991.

Sha Sha Higby
"I was a sculptor who wanted to dance," says Northern California artist Sha Sha Higby. Combining dance with multilayered, multipieced costumes made of painted and dyed silk and skin, bells, feathers, puppet and doll parts, mirrors, glass and jewelry, dried flowers, seed pods, lace, beads, and anything else imaginable, Higby sets out to create a moving sculptural performance. Audiences often want to take a closer look at her costumes. The current exhibit lets visitors view the designs in full detail.

Sha Sha Higby draws inspiration for costumes from deep within Asian cultures. While studying for a fine arts degree at Skidmore College in 1972, she studied in Japan with a master artist of Noh masks. Later, she spent five years in Indonesia, studying Japanese shadow puppets, Butoh and Javanese court dancing, and calligraphy. She has also delved into lacquer techniques in Korea.

"Peruvian Retablos: The Social And Political Art Of Nicario Jimenez" and "Sha Sha Higby" run June 7 through August 10 at the San Francisco Craft and Folk Art Museum in Landmark Building A. For information, call 775-0990.
